Rangoli Dance Company presents
Paintings of the Divine

June 28, 2009
The Barnsdall Gallery Theatre, Hollywood, Ca
Sunday @ 6 pm

Rangoli Dance Company presents Paintings of the Divine on Sunday, June 28 at the Barnsdall Gallery Theatre in Hollywood, California. Conceived and directed by award-winning choreographer Malathi Iyengar, Paintings of the Divine showcases newly choreographed works that reveal the splendor of Bharatanatyam, classical dance of India. The dance concert is devoted to solos, duets, trios, and groups featuring vibrant technique and story telling. The concert will include lighting design by Eileen Cooley, costume design by Lakshmi Iyengar and set design by Suresh Iyengar.

Regarded as one of the leading dance makers in Los Angeles, Malathi Iyengar has created a body of work that is rigorous, and intellectually and philosophically stimulating, but always imbued with excellence in tradition and strong intent. During her career, Iyengar has created more than 20 full-length works and numerous individual dances.

Paintings of the Divine features company members Sheila Aula, Vyshnavi Aysola, Anjali Gopalan, Lakshmi Iyengar, Malathi Iyengar, Shilpa Mantri, Sumathi Nanguneri, Sandhya Rajan, & Soumya Sundaresh. The evening will also feature guest dancer Navia Natarajan.

Artistic director Malathi Iyengar, to realize a creative vision of presenting the visual and performing arts of India established Rangoli Foundation in 1985. Iyengar has imparted the craft and technique of Bharatanatyam dance to several students since its inception. Iyengar formed Rangoli Dance Company, a highly recognized group of exquisite artists in 1992. Consisting of a high caliber core and guest artists, the company has given numerous performances throughout the United States, Canada, and India.
